Existence is Infinite
Steven S. Lovelady

Abstract

Existence is an infinite, and it is duration. Stop nothing or inconsistencies will actually form existence. However, nothing of inconsistency is true and cannot be. Existence is not finite or limited. Existence is not a finite (nothing) however existence is not an extent or duration.

Terms and Definitions

Existence is a. Being; that which is perceived, or, that of a part, that which is interacted with, or, that of a part. In some way, or context of this thing existence. In the general sense.

Infinite says, a measureless or unbounded extent or duration.

Nonexistence is a. Not being; not existing, nothingness, a 'pure' personal or interacted with either that as a concept or items. A state of not being or existing. Not existing in any sense.

Inconsistency is a. Not consistent; not regular or uniform; irregular.

Unconsistency is a. Recognition of quantities of existence and their application for some benefit.

Nothing is a. Something which does not exist; nonexistence; a state of nonexistence; a nonentity; that, or, of, or, or, or, some way. If a word, an object, entirety, state, nonexistence, a concept, or word, or person, or.

Zero is a. Something which does not exist; that which is not owned by anyone.

Existence is and nonexistence is not.

Existence is a narrative. Nonexistence is nothin. Nonexistence does not exist, it is no thing. Every thing is something, including the concept of nothing.

Existence is infinite.

Existence is not finite or limited. Existence is not a duration. Existence is not a measure. Existence is not a thing. Existence is not a nothing. Existence is not a zero. Existence is not a nonexistence. Existence is not a nonentity. Existence is not a nothingness. Existence is not a void. Existence is not a vacuum. Existence is not a lack. Existence is not a deficiency. Existence is not a shortage. Existence is not a scarcity. Existence is not a dearth. Existence is not a famine. Existence is not a want. Existence is not a need. Existence is not a requirement. Existence is not a necessity. Existence is not a prerequisite. Existence is not a condition. Existence is not a stipulation. Existence is not a provision. Existence is not a term. Existence is not a limitation. Existence is not a restriction. Existence is not a constraint. Existence is not a qualification. Existence is not a modification. Existence is infinite.

Existence is infinite, because it is existence. Things, parts may change, they may disappear, they may shift around or reform, they may spend a break away. But existence always is existence, it is existence. The foundation of any thing, the basis of substance itself, concerns being existence. Existence is infinite, because it is existence. Existence is infinite, because it is existence. Existence is infinite, because it is
